

Do's

- Maintain professionalism in all communication with colleagues and clients
- Use clear, concise, and respectful language in emails and messages
- Follow organizational hierarchy and escalation procedures properly
- Be punctual for meetings, calls, and project deadlines
- Document work clearly for knowledge sharing and continuity
- Collaborate effectively with team members and support peer learning
- Follow coding standards and development guidelines consistently
- Keep sensitive data, credentials, and client information secure
- Use official tools and approved software for work activities
- Take ownership of assigned tasks and deliver commitments responsibly
- Ask questions and clarify requirements before starting work
- Maintain transparency in reporting progress and issues
- Respect diversity, inclusion, and different viewpoints in the workplace
- Follow IT security policies and compliance requirements strictly
- Participate in code reviews and feedback sessions constructively
- Keep systems, documentation, and tickets updated regularly
- Focus on continuous learning and skill development
- Maintain a positive and solution-oriented mindset
- Report incidents or risks immediately to the appropriate team
- Support a healthy work-life balance and professional conduct

Don'ts

- Do not share confidential information with unauthorized persons
- Do not use informal or disrespectful language in professional communication
- Do not ignore emails, tickets, or assigned tasks
- Do not bypass security protocols or access controls
- Do not use personal accounts or unauthorized tools for official work
- Do not commit untested or low-quality code into production

- Do not blame others without understanding the full context of issues
- Do not participate in office politics or unprofessional behavior
- Do not delay communication when issues or risks are identified
- Do not misuse company resources for personal activities
- Do not ignore documentation and knowledge-sharing practices
- Do not skip code reviews or quality assurance processes
- Do not share passwords or authentication tokens under any circumstance
- Do not violate intellectual property or licensing rules
- Do not create unnecessary dependencies between systems or teams
- Do not neglect backup, monitoring, and recovery practices
- Do not avoid accountability for mistakes or failures
- Do not escalate issues without attempting basic resolution first
- Do not work in isolation without team collaboration
- Do not compromise ethical standards in any technical or business decision